What is Medigap?

Original Medicare doesn't pay everything. Medigap (Medicare Supplement) is private insurance that helps pay what Medicare leaves behind: deductibles, coinsurance and copays.

Standardized

Plans are labeled by letter (A–N). A Plan G is the same coverage no matter which carrier sells it.

Price is the difference

Because benefits match, carriers compete on premium, rate-increase history and service.

Works with Original Medicare

You keep your freedom to see any doctor or hospital that accepts Medicare.

Plan G: the gold standard

Plan G is the most popular Medigap policy nationwide because it offers the most comprehensive coverage available to those newly eligible for Medicare.

- ✓ Covers Part A coinsurance & hospital costs
- ✓ Covers Part B coinsurance/copayments
- ✓ Covers the Part A deductible
- ✓ Covers Part B excess charges
- ✓ 80% foreign travel emergency coverage

$283

Your only out-of-pocket medical cost once you have Plan G: the annual Medicare Part B deductible (2026 amount shown).

After that, covered Medicare-approved hospital and outpatient bills are paid at 100%.

Who Plan G fits best: people who see doctors or specialists often, want predictable monthly costs and a "set-it-and-forget-it" plan. The trade-off: higher premiums than less complete plans.

— = not covered. *Plan N pays Part B coinsurance but you pay copays of up to $20 for office visits and up to $50 for emergency room visits (if not admitted). Plans K and L pay 100% of covered services for the rest of the year once you reach the out-of-pocket limit ($8,000 for K, $4,000 for L in 2026) and meet the Part B deductible.

Plans C & F: Not everyone can buy them. They are limited to people who became eligible for Medicare before January 1, 2020.

High-deductible Plan G/F: Offered in some states. You pay a $2,950 deductible (2026) before the plan pays, in exchange for a lower premium.

BEFORE YOU BUY

How to compare carrier rates

Since every Plan G offers the same benefits, comparing carriers comes down to these five questions.

- What is the monthly premium for my age and ZIP code? Rates vary by location and carrier.
- How is the premium priced? Attained-age, issue-age or community-rated each change over time differently.
- What is this carrier's rate-increase history? A low starting rate can climb fast.
- Does the carrier offer household or other discounts?
- Will I need medical underwriting? Outside your Medigap open enrollment window, many states allow carriers to review your health.
